The primary contact number of the Company is as follows: 913-780-0731.

1.2 This Employee Handbook: This Handbook describes, summarizes, and explains the Company's policies, procedures, benefits (if applicable) and expectations regarding employees and their employment. This Handbook will cover rules related to employment. Complying with all of the provisions of this Handbook is a necessary requirement and condition of employment.

While this Handbook strives to give as much information as possible regarding the Company's practices, there may be situations that it does not cover. As such, please do not consider this Handbook a comprehensive, all-encompassing document. The policies and procedures outlined in this Handbook are meant to be a basis for and supplement to other official Company documents, the human resources division of the Company, and any other specific information as may arise from time to time.

If there are any specific questions about anything contained in this Handbook, the employee should consult the appropriate individual or department within the Company.

This Handbook is also subject to other official documentation regarding the Company's benefits (including insurance and plan documents, if applicable).

This Handbook replaces and supersedes any and all previous employee handbooks, rules, practices, or other policies, written or oral, express or implied. Individual employment agreements between an employee and the Company may, however, control over the terms of this Handbook.

1.3 Policy Changes: The Company may, at various points in time, and in our sole and exclusive discretion, change the terms of this Handbook. We have the express right to change, revise, revoke, modify, amend, add to, or otherwise vary the terms of this Handbook and any other Company paperwork, documentation, or information. The terms can only be changed in writing and updated in this Handbook, no terms will be changed orally. If we change the terms herein, we will send written notice to all employees. All employees will be responsible for being aware of any policy changes after notice is received. If there are any questions or issues arising from or relating to anything contained within this Handbook, employees should ask their supervisor or the human resources subdivision within the Company.

1.4 At-Will Employment: Unless a specific, contrary written employment agreement is received by the employee and signed by an authorized representative of the Company (which shall only be the Company's highest officers, including the CEO or President), all employees of the Company are to be considered at-will employees. In other words, either the Company or the at-will employee may terminate the employment relationship at any time for any reason, with or without notice. Nothing in this Handbook shall be construed to change or modify the at-will relationship between the Company and employee. Further, nothing in this Handbook shall be construed to limit the Company's right to change the terms of the at-will employment relationship, including through wage alterations, promotions, demotions, benefit changes or any other material change.

1.5 No Guarantees & Interpretation: The Company's interpretation of anything contained within this Handbook will govern and be absolute. Further, nothing contained herein should be construed to guarantee any kind of employment, any terms of employment, any continued employment or any specific relationship between any current employee and the Company. Only an executed, written employment agreement can alter the terms of this general Handbook.

1.6 Disputes: As consideration for your continued employment, you agree that any disputes between you and the Company shall first be submitted to the Company for possible personal and good faith resolution. If these personal resolution attempts fail, you agree that any disputes between you and the Company shall be submitted to binding arbitration. The arbitration shall be conducted in the primary county where the Company operates. The arbitrator shall have no authority to add Parties, vary the provisions of this Agreement, award punitive damages, or certify a class. The arbitrator shall be bound by applicable and governing Federal law as well as the law of the primary state of business for the Company. Claims necessitating arbitration under this section include, but are not limited to wage and benefit claims, employment termination claims, breach of contract claims, confidentiality claims, claims based on Federal and state law, and claims based on local laws, ordinances, statutes or regulations. Intellectual property claims by the Company will not be subject to arbitration and may, as an exception to this sub-part, be litigated.

SECTION 2: EMPLOYMENT POLICIES

2.1 Employment Classification: All employees at the Company are classified into two primary categories, as required under federal law, specifically including the Fair Labor Standards Act ("FLSA"). The two categories of classification are exempt employees and nonexempt employees.

Exempt Employees: Exempt employees are those that meet specific conditions under the FLSA, the primary of which is to hold a certain position. Normally, exempt employees are those in high-level roles, such as executives, professionals, administrators and others, who receive a salary. "Exempt" under the FLSA means exempted from the minimum wage and overtime sections of the FLSA.

Nonexempt Employees: Nonexempt employees are those that are not exempt from the minimum wage and overtime sections of the FLSA. These employees must be paid at least the minimum wage per hour and qualify to receive additional payments for overtime.

Employees are further categorized at the Company into additional classifications, as described below.

Regular Full-Time Employees: Regular full-time employees are those who are not temporary employees, consultants, or independent contractors and are those employees who are regularly scheduled to work the following number of hours per week: 40.

Regular Part-Time Employees: Regular part-time employees are those who are not temporary employees, consultants, or independent contractors and are those employees who are regularly scheduled to work less than or equal to the following number of hours per week: 30.

If employees are unaware of their classification or have not been notified, they should inquire to their supervisor or a human resources manager.

Independent contractors and consultants are not considered employees of the employee of the Company in any way. Instead, they are self-employed. Independent contractors and consultants are not eligible to receive Company benefits and will be subject to the specific terms of the written agreement between themselves and the Company.

2.2 Confidentiality: In the course of employment with the Company, employees may have access to certain non-public Confidential Information (as hereinafter defined). The Confidential Information may be in the form of documents, techniques, methods, practices, tools, specifications, inventions, patents, trademarks, copyrights, equipment, algorithms, models, samples, software, drawings, sketches, plans, programs or other oral or written knowledge and/or secrets and may pertain to, but is not limited to, the fields of research and development, forecasting, marketing, personnel, customers, suppliers, intellectual property and/or finance or any other information which is confidential and commercially valuable to the Company.

You, as an employee of the Company, hereby agree that the Confidential Information is secret and valuable to the Company and that the Company desires to maintain the secret and private nature of the Confidential Information.

Confidential Information may or may not be disclosed as such, through labeling, but is to be considered any information which ought to be treated as confidential under the circumstances through which it was disclosed.

In other words, employees must not engage in any relationships, activities, businesses, or other situations which may conflict with the best interests of the Company. Employees must disclose any conflicts, including those which may just be potential conflicts, to the appropriate authority at the company. 2.4 Employment of Minors: The Company strictly follows the child labor provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA). These provisions were created to ensure that the nation's youth do not work in jobs that may pose risks to their health and safety. The FLSA generally sets minimum ages for work across various sectors, restricts the hours that minors may work, and disallows minors under the age of 18 from work in hazardous jobs. The FLSA also sets wage standards for certain classes of employees, such as full-time students, workers with disabilities, and employees under 20 years of age.

If you believe any of the provisions of the FLSA apply to you, please discuss it with a relevant manager in the human resources department as soon as is practicable.

2.5 Employment of Relatives & Personal Relationships: In certain circumstances, relatives or individuals that are close, personal relations may work together. Such work together may include simply working in the same department or it may include managing or supervising each other. Relatives or close relations may even work in a capacity to have access to Company-specific information about the other. The Company allows such work, but only to the extent that it does not jeopardize the business or operations of the Company or otherwise harm any employee or create any conflicts of interest.

If the Company finds any issues among or regarding the work relationships of relatives or close personal relations, the Company may reassign employees. If such issues may be problematic and the Company learns of the relationship during the hiring process, the Company may decline to hire such relative or personal relation at their sole and exclusive discretion.

All employees of the Company must disclose any relatives or close personal relations that may be joining the Company as employees, contractors, or consultants or that may be suppliers, clients, or customers of the Company. If your status as a relative or close personal relationship to one of these groups changes during the course of your employment (for example, through marriage or adoption), you agree to notify the Company as soon as is practicable.

The Company reserves all rights to deal with and manage these situations, including through reassignment or request for resignation.

2.6 Probationary Period: For all new hires, the following period is considered an introductory or probationary period: 2 weeks (the "Probationary Period"). During this time, Management will monitor the new employee's progress and performance. Employees are also expected to ascertain their fit with the Company during this time, including learning specific job duties and getting to know with other employees. After the Probationary Period ends, there will be a performance review for the employee completed by their immediate manager or supervisor. If the Company determines that the employee has satisfactorily performed and opts to continue employment beyond the introductory period, the employee will be given additional details, including information on improvements needed. At this time, the employee is expected to offer any ideas that could improve Company operations. SECTION 8: EMPLOYEE TIME OFF & LEAVES OF ABSENCE

8.1 General: Regular attendance is vital to maintaining business operations. However, the Company understands that employees may need time off from work and the Company offers several different types of leaves of absence for a variety of reasons. Some leave types governed by law while others are granted on a case-by-case basis. All leave requests must be approved by Company management which reserves the right to approve or deny any requests unless otherwise provisioned under law. Employees must submit a leave request for planned leaves the following number of days in advance: 10. In case of emergency, an employee should submit the request as soon as they become aware of the need for leave. If an employee applies for unemployment insurance benefits, accepts alternate employment, engages in other employment or consulting outside of the Company during a leave of absence, the employee may be considered to have voluntarily resigned from employment with the Company.

All leave of absence requests will be considered as they relate to the Company and its work requirements, as determined by Company management. For disability-related leave requests, the Company will engage in an interactive process with the employee to determine if a leave of absence is an appropriate accommodation based on the employee's circumstances. Recommendation for a medical leave of absence requires an employee to provide a certification from his or her healthcare provider to the Company. The leave request may be delayed or denied in the event that the certification cannot be provided to the Company in a timely manner. An extension of leave must be approved before the expiration of the leave currently approved.

Except as required by law, there is no guarantee that the employee will be reinstated to his or her prior position, however, the Company will make every reasonable effort to ensure the employee is reinstated to their similar or exact position as before the leave.

Medical Certification: When leave is requested for medical reasons, the employee must submit a medical certification from the health care provider that establishes the employee is eligible for family and medical leave. The certification must be provided as soon as is reasonably practical, and not later than the date leave commences or within 15 days of the Company's request, whichever is later. When the leave is requested due to the employee's own serious health condition, the certification must include: (1) the date the serious health condition began, (2) the estimated duration of the serious health condition, and (3) a statement that, due to the serious health condition, the employee is unable to work and/or needs medical treatment.

When leave is requested to care for a family member who is ill or injured, the certification must contain: (1) verification the family member has a serious health condition or serious injury or illness, as defined above, and the date such condition began, (2) the estimated duration of the condition, (3) an estimate of the amount of time the health care provider believes the employee will be needed to care for the family member or covered service member, and (4) a statement that the condition warrants the participation of the employee to provide care. The Company reserves the right to contact the health care provider to seek clarification of information in the certification, as needed, and may require recertification, as appropriate.

At the conclusion of a leave due to an employee's serious health condition and prior to an employee's return to work, the employee must provide a certification from his or her healthcare provider regarding the employee's fitness for duty and eligibility to return to work. The employee must provide the required medical certification to the Company in a timely manner to avoid a delay or denial of leave.

Upon returning from such a leave the employee will normally be reinstated to his or her original or an equivalent position and will receive pay and benefits equivalent to those the employee received prior to the leave, as required by law. If the employee does not return to work on the first workday following the expiration of an approved family and medical leave, the employee will be determined to have resigned from his or her employment. In certain circumstances, "key" employees may not be eligible for reinstatement following a family and medical leave. The Company will provide written notice to any "key" employee who is not eligible for reinstatement.

8.2 Paid Time Off (PTO) Days: All eligible employees are entitled the following number of paid time off ("PTO") days per calendar year: 5. Regular part-time employees will be paid on a prorated basis. Employees may not accrue more than the following number of days of time

0. Once an employee's free time balance reaches this limit, an employee will be required to take time off to carry the limit within the acceptable range. Family and medical leave may be taken for the following reasons:

To. Employee's illness: the employee's severe health status;

B. Childcare: the birth of an employee's child or the placement of a child with the employee for foster care or adoption, provided that the leave is completed within 2 months of the child's birth or placement;
